THE HUNTRESS.

EDUCATION—"The main pillar which sustains the Temple of Liberty."—JEFFERSON.

VOL. VI. WASHINGTON CITY, D. C. FEBRUARY 26, 1842. NO. VIII—WHOLE NO 268

THE HUNTRESS

WILL BE PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

BY

MRS. ANNE ROYALL.

TERMS.

Two dollars and fifty cents; or three numbers five dollars per annum, paid in advance. One dollar and fifty cents for six months, including the Session of Congress. Where it is convenient for subscribers to pay the money down, they can have the paper for six, three, or one months.

Subscribers may discontinue their papers when they think proper, by giving notice to the publisher and paying all arrearages.

All letters sent by mail, must be post paid.

SELECTED TALES.

From the Friendship's Offering.

WINNING THE GLOVES.

OR THE WIZARD GUEST.

By William Henry Harrison.

[Continued.]

Rolandi spoke not a word, nor did he deign the bandit another look—but waving his hand as if to command his absence turned away, and without revisiting the apartment occupied by his hostess and her terrified companions betook himself to his own.

The bandit captain watched the retreat of the mysterious being by whom he had been so unaccountably overawed, and it was not until Rolandi had disappeared, that the other seemed able to draw his breath. The first use which he made of his partially recovered faculties, was to collect his followers who had witnessed the scene with an astonishment scarcely inferior in degree to their leader's terror, and in a few minutes, the castle was entirely clear of the unwelcome visitors, and the gate closed upon them. A few murmurs of disappointment, indeed escaped them in their retreat, but these were instantly silenced by their commander who, submissive as was his demeanor before the man who had so unexpectedly confronted him, appeared to hold undisputed sovereignty over his band.

'Well Bianca,' said Emilia the following morning, while they were taking their accustomed stroll in the castle garden, 'what think you of our guest now!'

'I scarcely know what to think of him,' was the reply. 'He is a most extraordinary person, and, independently of the gratitude which, in common with yourself, I entertain towards him for his well-timed and almost miraculous interposition in our favor, last evening, I do not hesitate to acknowledge, that he has interested me greatly. That he is no common character is quite evident—but who he is that thus, by a glance of his eye, can overawe and disperse a band of the most desperate robbers that ever infested the country, passes my power of conjecture. What think you he is!'

'I have thought much on the subject,' answered the other, 'and hitherto have hit but upon one solution of the riddle.'

'And what may that be? inquired Bianca.

'That he is the captain of the band of which the worthy, who headed the expedition of last night, was only the lieutenant, and that we owe our preservation to an interference prompted by gratitude for the shelter and succor which we have afforded to the self styled merchant Rolandi?'

'I should be very sorry,' exclaimed Bianca 'if your explanation of the mystery be the true one, and yet appearances, I confess, are much in favor of your theory.'

'Nay, cousin,' was the rejoinder, 'only think how romantic it would be to have a lover in the chief of a gallant band of free-booters.'

'Romance, Emelia,' said the other, 'can never consecrate crime—and were my interest for this stranger far deeper than it is, it would, were your conjectures correct, be absolved in abhorrence for his guilt.'

'A turn in the walk suddenly disclosed to them the subject of their conversation, reclining on a step which formed a part of the pedestal of an ancient urn.

'Here he is,' cried the volatile Emelia, 'and fast asleep, as I live! Merchant or no merchant, I will win a pair of gloves!' and without giving a thought even to the hazard or the impropriety of the action, she touched his forehead lightly with her lips, and the next instant was flying down the avenue with the swiftness of a fawn.

'Silly, thoughtless, imprudent girl!' exclaimed Bianca, when she joined her light hearted cousin—how could you expose yourself and me to the danger of the dilemma in which the stranger's waking would have placed us? What would your Lorenzo think of you, were he to know of this unseasonable piece of levity?'

'What he would think I scarcely know,' was the reply, 'but I suppose he would feel it incumbent on him to be very jealous, and cut the stranger's throat, which I do not intend he shall do, and therefore shall not tell my hero a word about it.'

'You are a sad girl,' said Bianca, 'and if you make not a steadier wife than you are a mistress, I fear your hero, as you call him, will have a sorry bargain of you.

'Nevertheless,' rejoined the other in a graver tone, 'I would that that were all I have to apprehend.'

'What mean you?' inquired Bianca.

'I have more than once,' resumed Emelia, 'hinted to you my suspicions that the meetings which, within the last year, have been held under this roof, and at which our very respectable guardian has presided, are not altogether for objects which the state would approve. I remarked, moreover, that the society of the worthies who compose the conclave, is exceedingly repugnant to Lorenzo—whose sole inducement in accepting of the marchese's hospitalities, if such they can be termed, may be referred to a certain madcap who shall be nameless. I have too much confidence in his loyalty and good sense to suppose that he would deliberately lend himself to any reasonable design—and therefore I hope that these assemblages are merely for the purpose of a faction to which Lorenzo gives no other sanction than may be inferred from his being often found in their company.'

'I observed,' said Bianca, 'that, on the last two or three occasions on which he has visited the castle, he has been more than ordinarily reserved, and that he has much of his wonted elasticity of spirits.'

'A circumstance,' rejoined the other, 'which has not escaped me, and upon which I have remarked to himself, but could gain but evasive and contradictory replies.—It may be, that altogether not approving of these meetings, he does not feel himself at liberty to disclose their object.'

'I hope and trust,' was the reply, 'that you have no just cause for apprehension on this account, Emelia—but the marchese is ambitious, and has the craft to beguile firmer men than Lorenzo into a furtherance of his design.'

The ladies returned to the apartment, and saw nothing more of the stranger. Towards evening, a messenger arrived with intelligence that the Marchese, with his sons, and a party of friends, would reach the castle on the following day. This news was little calculated for the consolation of the fair cousins, who, independently of the annoyance which the odious attention of the marchese's eldest son occasioned to the one, and the uneasiness caused to the other by lover's participation in such society, had every reason to apprehend the most disagreeable consequences from the presence of the stranger guest.

In proportion then to the intensity of their fears on this subject, was the delight with which they heard, at nightfall, the merchant had decamped, without sound of drum. True it is, he had greatly overpaid the hospitality he had received, by his signal deliverance of them from the incursion of the free-booters, but the ladies were somewhat at a loss to account for his want of courtesy in not making, or at least leaving, his adieus.

The cousins retired to their respective chambers, between which however, there was a direct communication. The surprise, not altogether unmingled with alarm, with which Emelia beheld upon her toilet a pair of white gloves, the reader will be at no loss to conceive. They were of silk, and of exquisite workmanship. A note accompanied them which was as follows—

'If thou hast a friend in whom thou takest more than a sister's interest, and there be a snare in his path, let him wear these gloves, as a lady's favor, in his cap, and deliver him in the hour of danger.'

'ROLANDI.'

With a burning blush upon her cheek, and her heart bounding with agitation, Emilia rushed into the adjoining chamber, where she found her cousin under the influence of as much surprise and scarcely less confusion—for Bianca had discovered upon her toilet a note. It enclosed a leaf of ivy and a sprig of myrtle, and ran thus—

'Farewell! Thanks for thy courtesy! If, among the expected arrivals, there be an individual whose presence is obnoxious to thee, cause the ivy leaf to be placed upon his plate, his goblet, or between the leaves of the missal, and be he at meat or mass, at the banquet or the altar, full or fasting, he will put the Arno between you in half an hour, and never cross it again. Thou hast already witnessed my power—and if, in a recurring season of perplexity or peril, thou would'st prove it again, place the myrtle on thy bosom in the morning, and before the eastern turret of the castle hath snapped the moat with its shadow, I will be with thee.

'ROLANDI.

'What think you now?' inquired Bianca of her cousin, when she had sufficiently recovered from the surprise into which these singular and mysterious communications had thrown them.

'That the stranger might have found better pastime than playing upon the credulity of two simple maidens.'

'I do not believe that such was his purpose,' replied Bianca.

'Why surely my brave cousin does not suppose that these tokens possess the virtue ascribed to them by the stranger?' exclaimed the young lady.

'Doubtless said the other, 'you will laugh at my credulity when I tell you that I will put one of them to the test, on the first occasion on which the marchese compels our presence at this boisterous banquet, and that I conclude will not be long after his return.'

Agreeably to his previous announcement, the marchese made his appearance on the following afternoon, accompanied by a somewhat larger party than he usually brought with him—and in honor of whom he ordered a splendid banquet to be prepared, at which, as Bianca had predicted, the ladies presence was requested equivalent to a demand.

Repugnant as such a scene must necessarily have been to a delicate and high minded woman, it was rendered doubly disgusting by the fulsome attention which Vicentio, the marchese's eldest son thought proper to address to her whom he was pleased to consider as his betrothed bride. Nor did these attentions become more tolerant as the banquet proceeded. At last, the natural insolence of his disposition becoming excited by the deep potations with which he had qualified the viands, he called for another cup of wine, and challenged the company to pledge him to the health of his intended bride.

The cheek of Bianca blushed a deeper crimson at this new insult—and but that she was anxiously expecting the issue of the experiment she was about to make of Rolandi's talisman, she would have instantly left the room.

Vicentio rose, and calling upon his comrades to follow his example, he took the wine from the hand of Alberto, and lifted it the level of his lip—when, the instant he was about to do honor to the toast, his eye became fixed upon the goblet, as though an asp had been coiled up within it, and dashing it untasted upon the floor, he hurried from the hall with a precipitation which left no time for question. Indeed, so great was the surprise occasioned by the frenzy which appeared suddenly to have seized upon him, that it was not until his competitors heard his horses hoofs in the courtyard, that they were able to take any measures to stay his flight. Some of them rushed to the gate, but it was only to learn from the porter that the fugitive had started at full speed, and had intimated as he passed, that he should not return.

Not having been aware of the ivy leaf in the cup, besides the two cousins and Alberto, who had contrived, unperceived, to place it there, it was not recognized as the cause of Vicentio's agitation—and thus the marchese and his guests were utterly at a loss to account for the freak of his hopeful son on any other score than that of madness. The occurence had the effect of abruptly terminating the banquet—and Bianca and her cousin gladly availed themselves of the oppertunity to retire to their own apartment.

'What says my infidel cousin now!' was the triumphant exclamation of Bianca; as soon as she found herself alone with Emilia.

'That your phœnix of merchants has proven himself to be an imposter,' was the reply.

'As how!' inquired the other, with somewhat of asperity.

'Why,' rejoined Emilia 'that the merchant is no merchant at all.

'Nay, said Bianca, 'there I agree with you—but I hope you have given up your bandit chief theory.

'Yes,' was the answer, 'but in favor of one which you will scarcely prefer to it.'

'And what may that be! eagerly asked Bianca.

'That he is either a devil or an angel,' responded Emilia.

'That is rather a wide guess, my cousin,' resumed Bianca, 'but let me ask you, has the result of this evening's experiment determined you on proving the virtue of the gloves?'

'Surely,' replied Emilia, 'if I can prevail upon Lorenzo to accept the gift.

'Which you will scarcely do by informing him of the mode in which they were won, replied the other, as the cousins parted for the night.

On the following day, towards evening Bianca, rather to her annoyance than her astonishment received a sudden message from the Merchese, requesting her to attend him in his closet. Well assured that if she did not go to him, the privacy of her own apartment would be invaded—she obeyed and found him pacing the room with a troubled and perplexed expression of countenance. He motioned her to a seat, but remained standing while he spoke. 'Bianca' said he 'I must be plain with you. Think not that the exultation which you vainly endeavored to conceal last night, when Vincentio so abruptly left us escaped my observation. Whether you had any knowledge of, or participation in the cause of his departure, I know not, nor do I care—but your triumph will be short. His brother remains, and to morrow's setting sun shall see you his bride.

'It shall rather gild my grave! was the firm reply of the spirited girl.

Fame is like a shaved pig with a greased tail, and it is only after it has slipped through the hands of some thousands, that some fellow, by mere chance, holds on to it!

'That grave shall be a living one then, was the rejoinder, 'if it be not obeyed.

'My sainted parent,' returned Bianca, 'in an evil hour for his daughter's peace made you the guardian of my wealth—but he gave you no power in the disposal of my hand.'

'I did not send for you,' responded the other, to argue the matter, but to decide it. You go not forth from this place alive, but as the bride of your cousin Francesco. Choose you therefore, between sitting as mistress of these halls, or becoming the sole tenant of the western turret, whence—it was once a tradition of your family—none who entered it against their will ever came forth alive.

'You needed not to have told me that I am in your power,' was the determined response of the damsel—'I know it, and with that knowledge declare to you that I would rather live the companion of the newt and the toad, than the bride of your ruffian son!'

(To be Continued.)

Come out here and I'll lick you,' as the boy said ven he seed a bottle full of sugar sticks in a shop window.

WASHINGTON CITY.

SATURDAY FEBRUARY 26, 1842.

CONGRESS—THE GENERAL APPROPRIATION BILL.

The vote in the House to strike out all appropriations unauthorized by law, will revive the confidence of the people in their representatives. This looks like reform. May heaven speed them. This vote proves our words true, viz—that the great body of the democracy, so called, have been imposed upon by their leaders, the TRIO. It is likewise a proof that names are no evidence of principle. In this vote we see Whigs voted for the very strongest professions in favor of retrenchment and reform—voting against the instructions proposed by Hon M. P. Gentry to be given to the Committee of the Whole, to strike out, &c. But none of those fills us with more surprise, than the name of Hon. Ed. Stanly! Something, anything—other than dereliction from the path at first struck out by this "self-centred" man, must have caused this. We shall see!

Meantime, too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Hon. M. P. Gentry. Hon. S. S. Bowne, too, shows an honest heart, and an undaunted disregard of the Trio. So corruption be put down, it matters not who, or what may be the party of the man, he is the friend of the people.

But we are at a loss to account for the Chairman of Ways and Means. All that we have known since our residence in the vicinity of Congress, no matter what their reputation may have been for integrity and economy, previously to their appointment, they seem to have a sudden penchant to go deep into the treasury. We shall keep an eye on Mr. Chairman Fillmore, particularly as he is making too free with money, which belongs of right, to revolutionary widows.

THE WAR PARTY.

The editors of the Globe, one and all, seem to have a war fever. They give up the Caroline, and are trying to "make capital" out of the CREOLE.

As no true-hearted American can justify the outrage upon the Creole [as it is stated to have occured) without a satisfactory remuneration, on the other hand, no true-hearted American would consent to rush into a war without weighing the subject, and counting the cost—nor have we a doubt but the act will be condemned by the British government.

But the war party seems to dread an amicable adjustment of the matters in dispute with England.

One of the editors of the Globe—though he writes under the cover of a subscriber, is a much greater enemy to the people of the United States than the British, if we are not mistaken in the man. His language is quite familiar, and what efforts!!! He is in a real splutter. But mark his sly insinuations against the press! Oh! if he only had the power, he would wring the neck of every editor who dared to publish opinions contrary to his will, with as little remorse as he would the neck of a chicken.

"To the editor of the Globe.

Having seen by the speculation in the public papers throughout the country, that it appears to be the general opinion that the special mission of Lord Ashburton has originated in pacific and friendly views on the part of the British Goverment, and that good to us is likely to result from it, I beg leave, with all due defference, to express my opinion upon the subject, and will do so in very few words.

The mission of Lord Ashburton is intended for mischief, and will most surely produce it, as it regards this country. The plan is to create divisions and dissensions among us, or rather to augment and give effect to such as already exist, and to make the war, if one must come, as the last was, a war on our part of only a portion of our people.

"I beg leave with all due defference, to express "my opinion!" and who is "I?" and what does "my" opinion amount to? who made "I" a judge in Israel?" what a conceited sycophant. Pray, sir, who am you? This is intended to frighten the people. Stop sir. The whole British army could not frighten the people, if we except a few cowards, and we have no doubt but this Bombastes would be the first to run away. A traitor is always a coward.

But we should like to know who this high and mighty Soloman "is" that knows so much. Does he keep spies in the English court? or is he indued with supernatural powers? If the writer speaks truth, why does he conceal his name! a man so highly gifted as to foretell events which is to befall our country, ought not to be ashamed of his name. This looks suspicious.

Now the question solves itself into the following solution. The writer must have obtained the knowledge of the fact that "the mission of Lord Ashburton is intended for mischief, and will most surely produce it, as regards this country"—or he has not. If he has obtained it, the next question is, through what source? It must be either through human or super-human agency. Here the question rests until the gentleman choses to lift the veil that conceals the mystery.

If on the other hand, he has not received the information through any agency, but boldly asserts a wanton falsehood in the face of day, the object of which is to produce bloodshed, strife, and discord amongst the people—he is a demon, a fiend, in short, there is no name bad enough for such a monster. The country sunk to the lowest point of distress! the Union threatened! the government beggared! The man who would seek to enhance her trouble by insiduously provoking a war, would sell his country to the enemy.

The writer pretends even to know the plan, which is, he says, to breed "dissentions amongst us," &c. Who told him of the plan? the detestable traitor. A plan is a plot to execute evil, and is a secret until every thing is ready for action. How then could this man obtain a knowledge of a plot formed in the privy council of Victoria?

If such a plot exists, it is our opinion this writer is one of the plotters. But ain't he a Solomon? and the Queen and her council great bunglers, that could not lay a plan to elude his vigilance?

"For this purpose, an attempt will be made to satisfy and thaw off the Eastern States; either by settling the Northern Boundary question, and leaving the others in a worse situation than before—or, what is more probable, by making a plausible, and perhaps not unreasonable offer for its settlement, but connecting it with such demands and conditions in relation to other objects and interest, as this Government will be wholly unable to accede to. Thus the Eastern section of the Union will be induced to favor an abandonment of interests and principles, which the South cannot yield without inevitable ruin, and which are solemnly guaranteed to it by the Constitution. In this way, we shall be doomed to see acted over again the scenes which were witnessed previous to, and during, the last war.

If there really existed a desire on the part of England to settle the pending questions between the two countries, it could easily be done through the British Minister now here, or with our Minister, at London. But, under the guise of friendship and good feelings, and with an apparent effort to remove all cause of difficulty, a special Minister is to be sent here, who will possess, to a much greater extent, the means of carrying on intrigues, and producing evil, than could otherwise be done. Let the people of the United States look to this. Let all true friends of the Union be on their guard.

ONE OF YOUR SUBSCRIBERS.

"Let all true friends of the Union be upon their guard." And so we say, and more especially against domestic traitors.

This thirst for war has its secret object. The investigations now going on in Congress, is likely to bring frauds to light which may not prove so very pleasant to certain gentlemen, who have had a hand, either in the perpetration, or were privy to it. If a war only could be got up, it would swallow up every thing else, and draw off the attention of Congress and the people, and find them [as it has been boasted] other fish to fry.

Some of the largest divisions of the Augean stable has not yet been broached. Amongst these, we have reason to believe, is the Pension Office. Frauds have been carried on in this bureau, particularly in the bounty lands and revolutionary certificates, co-evil with the government itself, and the frauds have found friends, and have been, not only hushed up from one administration to another, as will appear, but multiplied.

(To be Continued.)

SPEECH OF HON. J. A. MERIWETHER, OF GEORGIA.

We see very few reported speeches of the House this session, but happening to meet with Mr. M.'s speech on the tariff, as referred to in the President's Message; on the subject of a discriminating tariff, the first we have seen of the new members.

Mr. M. seems to be a bold, energetic speaker. His language is strong, plain, and felicitous throughout, and not only a plain matter of fact speaker, but a close reasoner, and keeps his subject before his hearers.

But what he is most to be admired for is, a reverence for the government, while he boldly exposes its errors—and that gentlemanly and conciliatory manner he maintains toward his opponents, though once or twice he seemed to bear rather hard on our friend, Hon. S. Hudson of the House. We hope he has lost none of his height. By the way, we are sorry we did not see the speech of Mr. Hudson, to whom this speech is a reply. Hon. I. A. Eastman, too, seems to have preceded him.

This is the first time we have been able to comprehend the meaning of the word "tariff." The plain, clear, and succinct manner in which he discriminates between the interests of the southern and northern States seems to be fair, open and candid.

By the estimates of Mr. M. which bears the impress of accuracy, he makes it appear that it would be better for the people south to pay the northern operators of those manufacturers [the amount of wages allowed them] to do nothing.

His calculations of labor and capital are made with great precision, even to the cost of a cent's-worth.

Mr. M. appears to have had his eyes open all around, in regard to the present situation of the country, and the causes which led to it, and all laid down to the letter, with no very great honor to the Trio. He anticipates us in his statements of money appropriations—we mean spent, not by Mr. Van Buren nor Mr. Woodbury, but by and through the Trio, Messrs. Benton, Blair and Kendall.

We should like to have seen them wince under the lash.

Any low miscreant could come and get what money he pleased, and walk off with it, without the knowledge of the President. The amount appropriated generally, [mostly for the Indians] claims unpaid, withheld, strayed or stolen, [bad hands to take care of money] &c. &c. making a total of $24,719,008 8.

This must startle the honest democracy. But this is only a drop in the ocean to what is coming, and poor widows could not get their husband's pay! A war at this time would cover these glaring frauds.

[Comments to be continued.]

CONGRESS.

Has already reached the departments! If they would turn out one-half of those clerks, and raise—instead of diminishing—the salaries of the remainder, they would be right. We shall speak of this in our next.

FROM THE INDEPENDENT OF THE 22d INST.

Messrs. Editors of the Independent

My claims on Mexico have ultimately been decided upon by the Board of Commissioners—and as the decision is variously spoken of by friends and foes, but in a manner little flattering to me, and in nowise conformable with the true facts, I beg you will allow me to make them known briefly for the present, through your Independent pages.

My orginal claims amounted, principal and interest, to $398 339 02.

The Mexican Commissioners, blindly conforming themselves with the instructions, (for they avowedly act under instructions.] first, of a Camacho and a Monasterio, the two Mexican Secretaries of State, responsible for my two banishments from Mexico in 1826 and 1835, and then of a Santa ANNA, the present Mexican dictator, and my capital personal enemy—and without making the least examination of the case, nor assigning either to our Government, my counsel, or their own American colleagues, the slightest reason for their decision, but only in the hope, or with the design, of surprising the good faith of the umpire by a secret report, have pronounced, as it was to be expected, a laconic, dry, round "Nothing."

The American Commissioners, Messrs. H. M. Brackenridge and Wm. L. Marcy, had first differed in opinion.

The former, overloaded with business, began by requesting my counsel, David Hoffman, E-q., to divest himself, for a moment, of his functions of advocate, and write down a judicial opinion, or report—to be sent by him and his colleague, Mr Marcy, to the umpire, as their own. The opinion, of about one hundred pages, was ready in ten days, and the amount of my claims, principal and interest, reduced by Mr. Hoffman, to $283,898 50.

The Opinion was, however, revised by Mr. Brackenridge, slightly corrected, and two fair copies of it ordered by him to be made, certain of the approbation of his colleague, Mr. Marcy. But it was not so. This gentleman's objections caused other corrections to be made, and it was returned covered with blots and erasures, and so far disfigured, that much labor was necessary to put it again in the state of being presented to the umpire. As to the award made by Mr. Hoffman, it was still curtailed by Mr. Brackenridge, reduced, capital and interest, to $165,264 25, and then signed by him as res judicata on his part.

The latter (Mr. Marcy] placed in his desk, both the twice corrected Opinion, and the Award signed by Mr. Brackenridge, intending not to send to the umpire my case, already finished, until other pending cases were dispatched by him. Some explanations then took place, which convinced me of having, in his Honor, a determined enemy, and of which our Government and the world will be informed as soon as possible.

Finally, on the 15th instant, the whole was forwarded to the umpire—that is, the award still again reduced, principal and interest, to $82,776 50—and the opinion still again blotted out in a great proportion. These unexpected and sudden innovations were performed without the least knowledge of my counsel, and it was ascertained that Mr. Brackenridge, 'in order not to cause any injury to my interest,' as he said, revoked his own opinion, and adopted that of Mr. Marcy. It was found that the new corrections made by the latter, though highly affecting the very merits of the claims, and hiding facts derived from the irrefragable evidence presented, tended evidently to the double object of ingratiating himself with Santa Anna, and lessen as far as possible, the attention of the umpire on the concern. * * * * * In the impossibility, under which he was, of denying my rights, or contradicting the least of my allegations, he admitted them all—but contrived to the best of his ability, first, to reduce the award claimed to almost nothing, and then to make the umpire the tool of the spirit of vengeance under which he was laboring, since I dared to expose, in July, 1841, to the President of the United States, the nullity of the Convention, the extravagance of the Board, the shameful conduct of our own Commissioners, and his own unwarrantable iniquity by joining the Mexican emissaries in rejecting my legal demand for some important documents from Mexico, in open contempt of the Convention itself.

The whole will be properly exposed and proved in a pamphlet, now under press.

Having fortunately entered my claims into that mad club, under a solemn protest, filed in the Department of State, I must repose upon the justice of Congress, to which I must have recourse, and then * * * * * * *

Your most humble servant,
SANTANGELO.

Washington, Feb 20, 1842.

(This is too bad. We had expected better of Mr. Marcy. The original claim of M. de Santangelo appears to have been well authenticated, and acknowledged to be so, by Mr. Breckenridge—who having made some slight alterations in the original claim, [agreeing in the main with Mr. Hoffman, counsel for M. de Santangelo,] handed it over to his colleague, Mr. Marcy, certain of his concurrence. This, however, was not the case. Mr. Marcy again reduced the claim, which now amounted to $283,899 50, down to $82,776 50 "Oh, shame, where is thy blush?" Gov. Marcy used to be a clever man. What has got into him.

POETRY:

MACHNIE POETRY.

I GUESS I'll TAKE A PIE.

The Temperance fever's all the rage—
Folks' tastes are not like mine—
For while they call for water cold,
I call for gin or wine,
I ask them up to take a drink,
They say, oh no, not I!
Instead of getting gay or drunk,
I guess I'll take a pie.

No longer ago than yestermorn.
I met a favorite chum.
Whom, well I knew, addicted was,
To women, wine and rum—
But since this game was 'on the list.'
I thought we'd take it sly,
And yet the fellow shouted out—
I guess I'll take a pie.

As times now are, I cannot get
A chance to drink with any—
And yet the time has been when I,
Could drink with very many.
Whene'er I fall in with a friend
I knew in days gone by.
And ask him if he thinks that he
Should stand a treat or I,
He's sure to say, drink what you like.
I'd rather take a pie. SPOONS.

'Miss Julia, allow me to help you to a piece of this pie!" 'Only a part of the piece, if you please, Mr. Jerrell.' Mr. J. [after cutting the pie nearly as fine as mince meat,] I declare, Miss Julia, I shall be compelled to give you a whole piece, for cut it which way I will, 'twill be in pieces after all.'

'Ma wants to know if you won't lend her your life preserver!' 'Ah, is she going east!' 'Oh no, she is terribly sick with the fever, and the doctor thinks she must die. So she wants to borrow your life preserver and see what good that will do.

A loafer yesterday, who was reading in the Old Testament this phrase, 'Go to the bee, thou sluggard.' thinks it must be a misprint, and that 'bee" should be 'bed.

☞An Irishman wrote to his son at school the following letter:

'Dear Son—If you are well when this reaches you, we are all well. By the bearer, I send you my old brown coat—get a new one made out of it. Your mother sends you, unbeknowing to me, five pounds. I hope you will not spend them foolishly, if you do, I just can tell you are a silly goose—and I remain your affectionate father.

P. S.—Your sister Sally wanted me to tell you to send her a shell comb, but as I forgot it this time, and the letter was already sealed, I will mention it in my next.'

NEW GROCERY.

Mr JAMES GIVEN has the honor to inform the Public in general, and his friends in pareticular, that he has just opened a Grocery Store in that noted building on Penn Avenue, near the Railroad Depot, formerly occupied by Mr. Dunn as a furniture store, and latterly by the office of the Native American, where he will be happy to accommodate all who may favor him with their custom, with every article in the Grocery line.

$100 REWARD.

DR. STORM'S SPECIFIC COMPOUND

For the cure of Gonorrhoa, Gleets, Strictures, Diabets or difficulty in making water, and all other unnatural discharges from the uretha of either sex.

In no case has this medicine been know to fail, to effect a permanent cure, and too in the shortest possible time. Should this medicine fail to effect a cure where it has been taken according to directions, return the empty vial and get back the money Why then spend both time and money with such quack nostrums as cannot be depended upon; when, for $1, you can purchase a pleasant, sure, and speedy cure, composed solely of vegetable substance? One hundred dollars will be paid to any one who will produce a medicine to equal this compound, or who will prove that it contains any mineral substance whatever.

☞For sale in Washington city by Robert Patterson, corner 9th and the Avenue, and Charles C. Stott, corner of 7th street, and the avenue; and by H. Wade on 7th street, and by J. & W. Young jr.

In Georgetown by John L. Kidwell.

MRS. HALL'S
BOARDING HOUSE,
Pennsylvania Avenne,
NEARLY OPP. BROWN'S HOTEL,
WASHINGTON.

FRESH
GARDEN AND FLOWER SEEDS,
For sale, Wholesale and Retail, at
J. F. CALLAN'S,
Drug Store, Corner of E and 7th streets,
WASHINGTON CITY:

Among which may be found the following Artichoke, Asparagus, Beans, various kinds; Beets, every variety; Brussels Sprouts, Broceli, Collards, Cabbage, many sorts, Carrots, do. do. Cauliflowers, late and early, Celery, white and red, Chervil, or Salad, Corn Salad, Cress or Pepper Grass; Cucumber, late and early; Corn, early, prolific, and sweet; Egg Plant, white and purple; Endive Curled; Kale or Borecole; Leek, English and Scotch Lettuce, all the best sorts; Melons and Cantelopes; Nasturtium; Okra, excellent for Soups; Onions, white, red, and silver, Parsley, plain and curled; Parsnip, large, Peas, extra early, early and late; Pepper, Squash and other, Pumpkins, premium, Radishes, many sorts; Rhubarb, for Tarts Salsify or Vegetable Oyster; Spnage round and prickly; Squash, every variety, Tomato, the finest kind; Turnip, all the best sorts, Onion Sets, &c. &c.

Splendid Flower Seeds, Bulbous Roots Dahlias, &c. &c.

☞These seeds are put up in small and convenient parcels, and are warranted true and genuine. The Roots, (particularly the Dahlias,) are of the most beautiful description, comprise all the new varieties, and will be sold at the New York prices.

 Orders from a distance punctually attended to, and Seeds, Roots and plants carefully packed to go to any part of the United States.

THE HUMAN HAIR is warranted staid or restored, and the head kept free from Dandruff, by the genuine Oldridge's Balm of Columbia.

Remember the genuine as described below.

This is certified to by several Mayors, Ministers of the Gospel, British Consul, Physicians, and a great number of our most honorable citizens, to be seen where it is sold

DARING FRAUD.—his article has been imitated by a notorious counterfeiter. Let it never be purchase or used unless it have, the name of L. SO MSTOCK, or the signature of COMSTOCK & CO. on a splendid wrapper. This is the only external test that will secure the Public from deception.

Apply at the wholesale and retail store No 2 Fletcher street, near Maiden Lane and Pearl street.

COMSTOCK & CO.
Wholesale Druggists, New York

A great variety of the most worthless trash for the hair has sprung up on the credit of this article. This has stood the test of 21 years, and rapidly increased in favor.

STEAMBOAT HOTEL.

The subscriber having taken the large and commodious Hotel on Seventh street, one door from the corner of Pa. Av. facing Centre Market, formerly occupied by John Lloyd, Esq.

Of this long established house, for a description convenience, and comfortable apartments little need be said. he subscriber, also long known to the Public, is prepared accommodate boarders and travellers at shortest notice. His table is plentifully furnished with the best the market affords prepared by experienced cooks, and attentive servants;

His bar is furnished equal to any in the United States.

He flatters himself, therefore, that from his zeal to give entire satisfaction, he may receive a moderate share of public patronage.

B. O. SHECKLES.

sept. 23, 1840

PHILADELPHIA SATURDAY COURIER.—Printed and published by A M'Makin & E. Holden, at No. 72 Dock Street, corner of Walnut.

Terms of Subscription—$3 per annum, $2 if paid in advance $1,25 in advance for six months.

Of Advertising.—$1 per square for each insertion. No yearly advertising admitted tahese terms have been adopted both because me number of subscribers are so much trger than alk ne daily papers united, as to make them actually cheaper, and because a epetition of old advertisments affords no nterest to the readers.

Papers discontinued only at the option the publishers, while arrearages are due.

Small notes are received in payment of our bills,

Any person forwarding $10 will be entitled to six copies.

Postage on letters must invariably be paid.

Travelling Agents will much oblige by sending the numbers and time paid for, as well as invariably the names paid.

All remittances of money by mail are acknowledged in the 'Receipts by Mail.'

Agents for this paper are earnestly requested to make quick remittances, without which it is impossible to keep accounts even.

When, a single paper is ordered by an agent and postage accrues, if is invariably charged to the subscriber.

Directions must always be accompanied with the name of the subscriber, and the Post Office at which a paper is discontinued or paid for and in case of a removal, the office from which as well as to, which the paper is to be changed.

GERMAN HOTEL,
BY
CHARLES ROSENTHRAL.

The proprietor has removed to the south side of Penn. Avenue, between 12th and 13th sts. to the House lately occupied by CCOLT where he will be happy to entertain old customers and strangers

"DEPOT HOUSE."

This is a new tavern recently opened by MICHAL MCDERMOTT, at that popular stand formerly occupied by Mr. McGuire, immediately opposite the car office, on Pennsylvania Avenue. Mr. McD. has long been known to the public as a successful carriage maker, and a most amiable man.

He has fitted up the house in a neat and commodious style, and solicits a portion of the public patronage. He is prepared to entertain travellers and citizens at the shortest notice. He has a well furnished bar and provided with good beds and stables.

Cabinet, Chair, and Sofa Manufactory
AND UPHOLSTER

G. W. DONN & CO.

Respectfully inform their friends, and the public in general, that they carry on the above named business in its various branches, and will manufacture to order any article in their line, also repair furniture of all descriptions in the best manner.

Their stock on hand in their Ware-room, on Pennsylvania Avenne, equidistant from the railroad depot and Capitol gate, will consist of

Spring and cushion-seat Sofas, Low Bedsteads
Sideboards, Bureaus, (column, dressing and common)
Centre, side, column, pier, dressing, sofa, loo, dining and breakfast Tables
Wardrobes, Bedsteads
Mahogany, Rocker, parlor and other Chairs
Hair, moss and shuck Mattresses, &c.

All of which are of the best workmanship, and will be sold as reasonable as at any other establishment in Washington.

☞Persons wishing to exchange their old furniture will give us a call.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber has taken the Oyster Lunch, corner of 14th street and Pennsylvania avenue, formerly kept by John Hand jr. where he intends keeping all the delicacies of the season, both in the eating and drinking way. Gentlemen will please call and taste for themselves.

Mar 1840 J. W. DEXTER.

THE GENUINE VEGEABLE PILLS—An effectual cure for Gonorrhœa, Gleets, Strictures, &c. &c. Of all the remedies yet discovered for the cure of these complaints, the Vegetable Pills have been the most effectual, as they have never been known to fail to effect a perfect cure. They are mild and pleasant to take, yet powerful in their action, and may be taken without the knowledge of the most intimate friend. These Pills are put up in square boxes, with full directions accompanying each box. For sale by & W Young, jr. C Stott, corner of 7th street and the avenue; C T and T e'Jardella, corner of 12th and the avenue p Wade on 7th street.

Georgetown, O by Linthic

MICHAEL McDERMOTT wishes to inform his customers and the Public in general, that he still continues to carry on the COACH MAKING BUSINESS, in all its branches, on Penn avenue, between Third and Four-and-a half street where he keeps constantly on hand for sale Family Carriages, Barouches, Vehicles, Buggies, Sulkies, Gigs, Carryall &c., made of the best materials and by selected workmen. He hopes by strict attention to business, to receive share of public patronage

Repairing done as usual.

CONFECTIONARY:

THE SUBSCRIBER having remove from 7th street to Pa. Avenue, between 3d and 4th street, below the UNION TAVERN, below, where he has the honor to inform his friends and the Public in General, that he is prepared to furnish at the shortest notice every variety of article in his line; Cakes of every description, Candies in every variety of Fruit Nuts, &c. H. BARN

PROPOSALS
FOR
PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION

The Authentic Report of the Controversial Discussion, that took place in the City of Dublin, in the year 1827, between the Rev THOMAS MAGUIRE, and the Rev R. T. P. POPE.

This celebrated work, the most remarkable controversal discussion of modern times, having gone through twenty-one editions in England and Ireland, where it is still read with extraordinary vidity, and in the United States passed through three editions, all of which are exhusted to the last copy; and the demand for it from all quarters, Catholic and Protestant, being still very great, it is proposed to re-publish it in Weekly Numbers at such a price as to put it within the reach of all without sporessing any.

Those in the City of N. York, who wish the work, will be served by leaving their names with the publisher, John Doyle 294, Pearl Street, those at a distance can have it regularly mailed to them, by remitting one dollar in a post-paid letter.

Agents.—Mr. Patrick Conolly, 118 Ann St. Boston;—Henry Mc Keon, Willing-Alley, Philadelphia;—Mr. John Farnon Utica, N. Y.;—I.T Mathew McLeod Georgetown, D. C.;—Mr. Peter Haynes Savannah, Geo.—and the office of the U. S Catholic Miscellany, Charleston, S. C.

It is a well known fact that this great controversy has converted more sectaries to the Catholic Church in England and Ireland than any other work whatever; and has also been the happy means of bringing great numbers to the true faith in the United States It is therefore hoped that every sincere Catholic will lend his aid, by putting down his name, to prevent so valuable a work from being out of print, more particularly when for his subscription, he will receive the utmost value.

CONDITIONS.

1. One thousand copies only will be printed.

2. The paper and print will both be excellent.

3. It will be issued in weekly parts of twelve and a-half cents each part payable on delivery.

4. The number of parts it will make cannot be ascertained with accuracy at present, but should it exceed eight, the overplus will be given gratis.

Cabinet Maker, Printer's Joiner, and Undertaker.

The subscriber informs the public, that he is now about to commence in the various branches of his business at his stand, near 7th street, between E and F streets, formerly occupied by Nathan Smith. He will make to order all kinds o CABINET WORK, at the shortest notice PRINTER'S FURNITURE of ever description made to order, and a portion will be kept on hand to suit the patterns of Intelligencer and Globe. He will attend at FUNERALS, as usual, in the city or country, at the shortest notice. Long experience in the business, directs him to adopt the northern custom of keeping coffins ready made on hand, with Shrouds, Sheets and every thing necessary for immediate interment, in case of plague and sudden death. Two first rate Hearses always in readiness to attend in this city or in the country.

june 15 PETER CALLAN.

PHILADELPHIA TYPE FOUNDRY.

JOHNSON & SMITH, No. 6 George street, [between 6th and 7th,] keep constantly on hand type, Presses, Printing Types and Printing Materials of every description.

The following are the prices of Printing Types, at six months credit, for approved paper, or at a discount of 7 1-2 per cen or cash.

		TALI
		Double G. Prim
Pearl	75	Double Paragon	38
Nonpareil	3	Cannon	38
Minion	75	Four line Pica	34
Brevier	66	Fiveline Pica	34
Bourgeois	38	Six line Pica	32
Long Primer	34	Most of the
Pica	43	Six line Pica
English	38	and larger, are
Great Primer	38	cut on wood,
Paragon	38	and are from
Double Pica	38	5 to 37 1-2 lcts
Double English	38	per letter.

INDIAN RESTORATIVE

For Restoring and Promoting the Growth Hair.

THIS article not only promotes the Growth of Hair, but makes it soft and pliable. It prevents its falling off, and affords effectual nourishment to the Roots restores it to its natural color, improve the beauty, and gradually changes light or red hair, to that of a brown or black. It also removes Dandruff, prevents baldness and so extremely pleasant to use, that parents will find it of great advantage in cleaning children's heads; (as it is of great benefit to the health,) and is far superior to other Restoratives, Balsams or Oils—and particularly in cases of Fever, when the hair begins to fall off. There has never been any thing so effectual as the 'Indian Restorative.'

To be had Wholesale and Retail of Charles Stott, corner of 7th street and Penn. Av. Washington City, D. C.

In Baltimore by Dr. A. Pena, No. 2 Ninth street.

THORPE'S VEGETABLE ANTI BILIOUS PILLS. A sovereign remedy in cases of Bilious Indigestion, or Fou Stomach; Dyspepsia, such as loss of Appetite; Nausea, or Sickness at the Stomach Costiveness; Languid lowness of Spirits Giddiness; Palpitation of the Heart

For cleansing the stomach and removing the bile they stand unrivalled; they are a safe but excellent preventative of all disorder originating from a foul stomach.

They are mild in their action, and purge but little, and are an excellent purifier of the blood.

N. B. These Pills contain no Mercury whatever, and may be taken without regard to diet and exposure.

For sale by J & W Young, jr: Charles Stott, corner of 7th and the avenue: H Wade on 7th street; and by C & J B Jardella, corder of 12th street and the avenue Washingto City

CHARLES CAHEN

Informs the Public that he has remove to that popular stand formerly occupied Michael McDermott, at the corner of Six street and Penn. Av. where he continues furnish refreshments to citizens and strangers, as usual. He begs leave to return his thanks to his friends and the Public in genthe for their liberal patronage heretofore, and hopes by assiduity and attention to merit a continuance of their favors.

NEW GROCERY,

Mr. JAMES GIVEN has the honor to inform the Public in general, and his friends in pareticular, that he has just opened a Grocery Store in that noted building on Penn Avenue, near the Railroad Depot, formeily occupied by Mr. Dunn as a furniture store, and latterly by the office of the Native American, where he will be happy to accommodate all who may favor him with their custom, with every article in the Grocery line.

$100 REWARD.

DR. STORM'S SPECIC COMPOUND

For the cure of Gonorrhoa, Gleets, Strictures, Diabets or difficulty in making water, and all other unnatural discharges from the uretha of either sex.

In no case has this medicine been know to fail, to effect a permanent cure, and too in the shortest possible time. Should this medicine fail to effect a cure where it has been taken according to directions, return the empty vial and get back the money Why then spend both time and money with such quack nostrums as cannot be depended upon; when, for $1, you can purchase a pleasant, sure, and speedy cure, composed solely of vegetable substance? One hundred dollars will be paid to any one who will produce a medicine to equal this compound, or who will prove that it contains any mineral substance whatever.

☞For sale in Washington city by Robert Patterson, corner 9th and the Avenue and Charles C. Stott, corner of 7th street, and the avenue; and by H. Wade on 7th areet, and by J. & W. Young jr.

In Georgetown by John L. Kidwell.

MRS. HALL'S

BOARDING HOUSE,

Pennsylvania Avenne,

NEARLY OPP. BROWN'S HOTEL,

WASHINGTON.

FRESH

GARDEN AND FLOWER SEEDS,

For sale, Wholesale and Retail, at

J. F. CALLAN'S,

Drug Store, Corner of E and 7th streets,

WASHINGTON CITY:

Among which may be found the following Artichoke, Asparagus, Beans, various kinds; Beets, every variety; Brussels Sprouts, Broceli, Collards, Cabbage, many sorts, Carrots, do. do. Cauliflowers, late and early, Celery, white and red, Chervil, or Salad, Corn Salad, Cress or Pepper rGass; Cucumber, late and early; Corn, early, prolific, and sweet; Egg Plant, white and purple; Endive Curled; Kale or Borecole; Leek, English and Scotch Lettuce, all the best sorts; Melons and Cantelopes; Nasturtia, excellent for Soups; Onions, w[illegible]d, and silver, Parsley, plain and curled, Parsnip, large, Peas, extra early, early and late; Pepper, Squash and other, Pumpkins, premium, Radishes, many sorts; Rhubarb, for Tarts Salsify or Vegetable Oyster; Sprage round and prickly; Squash, every variety, Tomato, the finest kind; Turnip, all the best sorts, Onion Sets, &c.

Splendid Flower Seeds, Bulbous Roots Dahlias, &c. &c.

☞These seeds are put up in small and convenient parcels, and are warranted true and genuine. The Roots, (particularly the Dahlias,) are of the most beautiful description, comprise all the new varieties, and will be sold at the New York prices.

 Orders from a distance punctually attended to, and Seeds, Roots and plants carefully packed to go to any part of the United States.

THE HUMAN HAIR is warranted staid or restored, and the head kept free from Dandruff, by the genuine Oldridge's Balm of Columbia.

Remember the genuine as described below.

his is certified to by several Mayors, Ministers of the Gospel, British Consul Physicians, and a great number of our most honorable citizens, to be seen where it is sold

DARING FRAUD.—his article has been imitated by a notorious counterfeiter. Let it never be purchase or used unless it have, the name of L.SO MSTOCK, or the signature of COMSTOCK & CO. on a splendid wrapper. This is the only external test that will secure the Public from deception.

Apply at the wholesale and retail office No 2 Fletcher street, near Maiden Lan and Pearl street.

COMSTOCK & CO.

Wholesale Druggists, New York

A great variety of the most worthless trash for the hair has sprung up on the credit of this article. This has stood the test of 21 years, and rapidly increased in favor.

STEAMBOAT HOTEL.

The subscriber having taken the large and commodious Hotel on Seventh street, one door from the corner of Pa. Av. facing Centre Market, formerly occupied by John Lloyd, Esq.

Of this long established house, for alesc convenience, and comfortable apartmens little need be said, the subscriber, also ong known to the Public, is prepared accommodate boarders and travellers at h shortest notice. His table is plentifully furnished with the best the market affords prepared by experienced cooks, and attentive servants:

His bar is furnished equal to any in the United States.

He flatters himself, therefore, that from his zeal to give entire satisfaction, he may receive a moderate share of public patronage.

B. O. SHECKLES.

sept. 23, 1840.

PHILADELPHIA SATURDAY COURIER.—Printed and published by A M'Makin & E. Holden, at No. 72 Dock Street, corner of Walnut.

Terms of Subscription—$3 per annum, $2 if paid in advance $1,25 in advance for six months.

Of Advertising.—$1 per square for each inserion. No yearly advertising admitted lahese terms have been adopted both because me number of subscribers are so much trger than allt ne daily papers united, as to nake them actually cheaper, and because a epetition of old advertisements affords no nterest to the readers.

Papers discontinued only at the option the publishers, while arrearages are due.

Small notes are received in payment of our bills,

Any person forwarding $10 will be entitled to six copies.

Postage on letters must invariably be paid.

Travelling Agents will much oblige by sending the numbers and time paid for, as well as invariably the names paid.

All remittances of money by mail are acknowledged in the 'Receipts by Mail.'

Agents for this paper are earnestly requested to make quick remittances, without which it is impossible to keep accounts even.

When a single paper is ordered by an agent and postage accrues, if is invariably charged to the subscriber.

Directions must always be accompanied with the name of the subscriber, and the Post Office at which a paper is discontinued or paid for, and in case of a removal, he office from, as well as to, which the paper is to be changed.

GERMAN HOTEL,

BY

CHARLES ROSENTHRAL.

The proprietor has removed to the south side of Penn. Avenue, between 12th and 13th sts. to the House lately occupied by COLTMAN, where he will be happy to entertain his old customers and strangers

DEPOT HOUSE."

This is a new tavern recently opened by MICHAL MCDERMOTT, at that popular stand formerly occupied by Mr. McGuire, immediately opposite the car office, on Pennsylvania Avenue. Mr. McD. has long been known to the public as a successful carriage maker, and a most amiable man.

He has fitted up the house in a neat and commodious style, and solicits a portion of the public patronage. He is prepared to entertain travellers and citizens at the shortest notice. He has a well furnished bar and provided with good beds and stables.

Cabinet, Chair, and Sofa Manufactory

AND

UPHOLSTER

G. W. DONN & CO.

Respectfully inform their friends, and the public in general, that they carry on the above named business in its various branches, and will manufacture to order any article in their line, also repair furniture of all descriptions in the best manner.

Their stock on hand in their Ware-room, on Pennsylvania Avenue, equidistant from the railroad depot and Capitol gate, will consist of

Spring and cushion-seat Sofas, Low Bedsteads

Sideboards, Bureaus, (column, dressing and common)

Centre, side, column, pier, dressing, sofa, loo, dining and breakfast Tables

Wardrobes, Bedsteads

Mahogany, Rocker, parlor and other Chairs

Hair, moss and shuck Mattresses, &c.

All of which are of the best workmanship, and will be sold as reasonable as at any other establishment in Washington.

☞Those wishing to exchange their old furniture can give us a call.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber has taken the City Lunch, corner of 14th street and Pennsylvania avenue, formerly kept by John Hood jr. where he intends keeping all the delicacies of the season, both in the eating an drinking way. Gentlemen will please ca and taste for themselves.

Mar 1840 J. W. DEXTER.

THE GENUINE VEGEABLE PILLS—An effectual cure for Gonorrhoea, Gleets, Strictures, &c. &c. Of all the remedies yet discovered for the cure of these complaints, the Vegetable Pills have been the most effectual, as they have never been known to fail to effect a perfect cure. They are mild and pleasant to take, yet powerful in their action, and may be taken without the knowledge of the most intimate friend. These Pills are put up in square boxes, with full directions accompanying each box. For dale by & W Young, jr. C Stott, corner of 7th street and the ave e; C T and T e Jardella, corner of 12th s the avenue p Wade on 7th street.

Georgetown, O by Linthic

MICHAEL McDERMOTT wishes to inform his customers and the Public in general, that he still continues to carry on the COACH MAKING BUSINESS, in all its branches, on Penn avenue, between Third and Four-and-a-half street where he keeps constantly on hand for sale Family Carriages, Barouches, Vehicles, Buggies, Sulkies, Gigs, Carryall &c., made of the best materials and by selected workmen. He hopes by strict attention to business, to receive a share of public patronage

Repairing done as usual.

CONFECTIONARY:

THE SUBSCRIBER having remove from 7th street to Pa. Avenue, between 3d and 4th street, below the UNION TAVERN, below, where he has the honor to inform his friends and the Public in General, that he is prepared to furnish at the shortest notice every variety of article in his line; Cakes of every description, Candies in every variety of Fruit Nuts, &c. H. BARN

PROPOSALS

FOR

PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION

The Authentic Report of the Controversial Discussion, that took place in the City of Dublin, in the year 1827, between the Rev THOMAS MAGUIRE, and the Rev R. T. P. POPE.

This celebrated work, the most remarkable controversal discussion of modern times, having gone through twenty-one editions in England and Ireland, where it is still read with extraordinary vidity, and in the United States passed through three editions, all of which are exhusted to the last copy; and the demand for it from all quarters, Catholic and Protestant, being still very great, it is proposed to re-publish it in Weekly Numbers at such a price as to put it within the reach of all without spouressing any.

Those in the City of N. York, who wish the work, will be served by leaving their names with the publisher, John Doyle 294, Pearl Street, those at a distance can have it regularly mailed to them, by remitting one dollar in a post-paid letter.

Agents.—Mr. Patrick Conolly, 118 Ann St. Boston;—Henry Mc Keon, Willing. Alley, Philadelphia;—Mr. John Farnon Utica, N. Y.;—r.T Mathew McLeod Georgetown, D. C.;—Mr. Peter Haynes Savannah, Geo—and the office of the U. S, Catholic Miscellany, Charleston, S. C.

It is a well known fact that this great controversy has converted more sectaries to the Catholic Church in England and Ireland than any other work whatever; and has also been the happy means of bringing great numbers to the true faith in the United States It is therefore hoped that every sincere Catholic will lend his aid, by putting down his name, to prevent so valuable a work from being out of print, more particularly when for his subscription, he will receive the utmost value.

CONDITIONS.

1. One thousand copies only will be printed.

2. The paper and print will both be excellent.

3. It will be issued in weekly parts of twelve and a-half cents each part payable on delivery.

4. The number of parts it will make cannot be ascertained with accuracy at present, but should it exceed eight, the overplus will be given gratis.